A Few News Items She Will Pardon 2,000 Suppose Britain Says No Dictators Get Results

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

CLOSE TOGETHER, in one newspaper, you read these items on a happy Sunday morning:

Four Rob Postoffices. Bandits Disarm Worker, Herd Him With Three Others in Washroom."

Killing in Auto Laid to Beer Party."

Bandits Get $17,110 on New Jersey Run. Shoot Hole in Roof, Slug Bank Messenger, Cow Fifteen Passengers. Driver, With Revolver Pressed Against Head by One of Pair of Bandits. Speed Through Union City."

And there are at least one hundred other similar "news items" in one day's news. Our crime wave is a disgrace to the nation, and, born of bootlegging, covers the entire country.

It has become an issue considerably more important than prohibition.

AN EXCITING, BITTER contest for governor in Texas interests the rest of the country.

Mrs. Ferguson, former governor, whose husband is also a former governor, is running against Ross S. Sterling, newspaper publisher of Houston.

Mr. Ferguson tells his audience they will have "two governors for the price of one," meaning that he will help his wife govern.

Mrs. Ferguson promises that he will pardon all imprisoned violators of the prohibition law. This pledge to release 2,000 convicts as a vote-getting measure shows that Texas is not unanimous for prohibition.

BRITAIN AND FRANCE agree to work for a restriction in war expenses as well as in the size of armaments. Britain agrees that economies agreed on at the Londonderley may be lost in the effort to get more expensive QUALITY in armaments while limiting QUANTITY.

Poor old Britain finds herself more tightly pinched for money than the French, or even the Italians, or at least, less willing to spend it.

"We've got the men, we've got the ships, we've got the money, too," must be rewritten to leave out "money."

If Britain decides to limit cost, as well as SIZE of armaments, and we obediently "string along" as usual, we shall not have much armament.

Our patriots do not give their dear government very much for a dollar. One billion in Europe will easily buy, in real defensive value, as much as two billions here.

We, of course, "have got the money" now. But what if Britain should send for a gathering of our mush and milk experts from Washington and tell them we must not SPEND THE MONEY BECAUSE THEY, THE BRITISH, CANNOT AFFORD IT!

A dictatorship, while it lasts, creates efficiency. You see it in the French Revolution, men in stovepipe hats dominating the battlefields of of Europe. You see it in the careers of Cromwell and Napoleon.

And you see it again today in Russia, Italy and Turkey, three nations progressing amazingly because dictatorship and revolution sweep aside tradition

MOTHER, SONS ARRESTED IN RURAL THEFTS

Three Held in Jail for Investigation Pending Filing of Charges by Sheriff.

AUTOMOBILE IDENTIFIED

Francis Says Two Men Have Shot Wounds on Arms and Legs

Efforts of Sheriff John J. Francis to round up members of an alleged ring of rural thieves in connection with grain and cattle stealing throughout the county today had resulted in the arrest of Mrs. Martha Hopkins and her two sons, Willard and John.

The mother and Willard were lodged in county jail on investigation charges while John was placed in the city jail. They were arrested yesterday.

Both boys have shot wounds on their arms and legs, Francis says.

Fired at Thieves

Norris Carey had been missing wheat from a barn and one night lay in wait for the thieves. He saw two men enter the building and carry sacks to a nearby automobile. When he ordered them to halt they opened fire, receiving in return several volleys from Carey's repeating shotgun. The men attempted to reach their automobile but abandoned it in their haste to get away.

Farmers in the neighborhood identified the automobile as be-

GIRL KIDNAPED BY FARM HAND

Abductor Threatens To Kill if Police Are Notified of Act.

By The Associated Press

VALPARAISO, Ind., Aug. 25 — Hundreds of grim, determined men thrashed through the Kankakee river bottoms today looking for a farm laborer and the 10 year old girl he kidnaped, hoping to find her alive but fearing to find her dead.

The girl, Betty Jane Foster, was abducted from her farm home Saturday night by Claude Dillner, 27, who formerly worked for the girl's father, Ernest Foster. Dillner left a note, found yesterday, in which he said he was in love with the child but would kill her if the police were notified.

Neighbors, friends and police of six counties joined in a search which was divided into twelve posses. No word of the two had been received until last night when a report was received that an automobile containing a man and a girl had been seen on a little used road in the river bottoms and that the man had driven to one

MA FERGUSON LOSES IN RACE

Texas Democrats Pick Ross B. Sterling as Gubernatorial Candidate by 100,000.

By The Associated Press

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 25—Nomination of Ross B. Sterling of Houston for governor in Saturday's Democratic run-off primary, indicated by unofficial returns, was hailed by Texas newspapers today as meaning political oblivion for his opponent, Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson

The greatest number of voters ever to cast ballots in a Texas election denied Mrs. Ferguson the opportunity of again being governor. Sterling's margin of victory was approximately 100,000 votes. The latest tabulation was: Sterling, 464,698; Ferguson, 371,654

Mrs. Ferguson and her husband, James E., have been figures in Texas politics for sixteen years. After serving as governor from 1914 to 1917 he was ousted, and failed for the nomination in 1918 Mrs. Ferguson became governor in 1924. She was defeated for renomination by Gov. Dan Moody in 1926. Ferguson's impeachment was ruled as barring him from the present race.

The Democratic nomination has been equivalent to election since reconstruction days.

Sterling P. Strong of Dallas former prohibition crusader and state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league twenty years ago, was defeated for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor by State Senator Edgar Witt of Waco.

Fear of Americans' Quickness To Shoot Given as Cause for Double Slaying.

By The Associated Press

FORT FRANCIS, Ont., Aug. 25—Two United States immigration inspectors were killed yesterday on a Canadian National passenger train near Emo, Ont., by a 21-year-old bandit who later was trapped in a farmhouse and mortally wounded.

The victims were Inspector Laurence Botes, 30, customs officer for Ranier, Ont., and Inspector Lawrence Jones, inspector for Warroad, Ont. The bandit was Emerick Frenatte, of Fort Francis. He died last night in an Emo hospital.

Conductor Describes Shooting

The shooting was described today by Conductor George E. Ireland of the train. He met the bandit in the vestibule between two coaches.

"I've just killed one man and if you don't do as I say, you'll be the second," the bandit told him, trying to conceal handcuffs which dangled from an arm.

"He told me," continued Ireland, "that he wanted to go to Winnipeg and ordered me into the day coach, where there were quite a few passengers sleeping.

"Botes was sitting opposite as the train neared a siding. He got up and stretched when he was shot down.

"The gunman then took me to the vestibule of another coach. At this point Inspector Jones, appeared at the entrance of the coach and asked where Botes was. I couldn't speak. Then the desperado shot him."

Passengers Give Alarm

He forced Ireland to take him to the engineer's cab where he ordered Engineer J. R. Russell to move the train, which had stopped. The airbrakes had been set from the rear by trainmen after passengers had given the alarm.

Frenatte fled, pursued by police and citizen possse. He was surrounded in a farmhouse at Barwick, Ont., whose owners he had evicted. Many shots were exchanged, Frenatte daring the police to "come in and get me." Finally the house was set on fire and Frenatte was shot as he ran out.

In the hospital he told police he had "lost his job and his girl" and was "desperate."

He expressed regret for the killings, but said he had heard "American officers were quick to shoot."

C. L. Knight Talks Before State Convention of Moose; Cleveland Next.

By The Associated Press

AKRON, O., Aug. 25—C. L. Knight, Akron newspaper publisher and former congressman, ridiculed the 18th amendment before the annual state convention of the Loyal Order of Moose and the women's auxiliary here yesterday.

Knight termed the prohibition law a "sumptuary statute which says: 'Thou shalt not drink, but if you do, do so in secret.'"

The publisher said that "we have reached the point where we think it only necessary to ask for statutes to remove all our ills, from an afflicted conscience to a corn on the foot" and added that "there never was a time in the history of the country when an organization such as that of the Moose was needed more than now."

Knight's address closed the convention. He spoke instead of Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, who was unable to attend.

Cleveland was awarded the next convention to be held August 21-22, 1931.

New Style of Type Adopted by The Star

WITH today's edition, the news columns of The Star are printed from a new style type face, known as "Ideal," that doubtless will meet with general approval.

The change, which is a permanent one made in the interest of Star readers, will assure a maximum of reading ease and comfort, tests having shown that the new type face produces that result. This modern type face, with its easy reading qualities, will appear to the reader as being larger than the style discontinued, although it actually occupies no more space, allowing the same number of words to the column. Virtually the only difference is that the letters are more rounded and present a broader printing surface.

Eye specialists have expressed the opinion that the small type generally used in newspapers has been a contributing factor toward eye fatigue.

The new design will remedy that condition, according to experts in optometry, who have given it their definite approval after ascertaining through tests that its improved legibility eliminates to a greater degree the element of eye strain.

FORMER LOCAL MAN WOUNDED

Hit by Bullet as Man Shoots Wife, Kills Self in Hotel Lobby.

Harold M. Smith, 21, former bell captain at Hotel Harding was seriously wounded during a domestic shooting affair in the lobby of the Arcade hotel in Springfield early today, in which one man was killed and a woman injured. He was shot in the lung.

The dead man is Roy G. Staley, 35, of Dayton, who shot and killed himself after wounding his wife Mrs. Jude Staley, 25, and Smith.

Mrs. Staley told police today that she and Staley had been separated since last February and that she had started divorce proceedings against him. The shooting came about when Staley entered the coffee shop where she was employed as a waitress, and attempted to effect a reconciliation.

She was afraid Staley meant trouble, she said, and left the coffee shop to go to the hotel lobby, where Smith was on duty, to borrow a gun to protect himself.

Staley followed her out, and as she asked Smith for the gun, she said Staley whipped a pistol from his pocket and began firing. Mrs. Staley suffered a flesh wound in her arm. Smith was hit in the back by a stray bullet, it was believed.

Smith was in Marion yesterday visiting friends at Hotel Harding. He left here about 6:30 p. m. to return to Springfield to go on duty. He took over his work in Springfield the first of the year. While in Marion he lived on Orchard street.

FASHIONABLE HOME IS SCENE OF SHOOTING

Miller Wilkison, Princeton Senior, Dies from Wounds Received in Scuffle.

BROTHERS HELD BY POLICE

One Confesses To Firing Gun Which Kills Son of Prominent Broker.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 25—A gay party of young folks from many of Cleveland's prominent families ended early today in a melee with holdup men and the fatal shooting of one guest.

Miller Wilkison, 23, led a group of young men in resisting five robbers armed with rifles and pistols and was shot in the head after police arrived and engaged in a gun duel with the intruders. Wilkison, a senior at Princeton university, was the son of Fred N. Wilkinson, dealer in investment securities.

The party was given at the home of Ray S. Dunham, one of the city's best known realtors, for friends of his son, Donald. About 40 persons were present.

Son Gives Warning

The elder Dunham said he was in the kitchen when his son ran in shouting, "get the police, five men are trying to rob us."

Dunham ran on out to the garage, but was unable to get his car because of the profusion of guests' machines. He ran to the front of the home, where he saw the young men backing the holdups off the porch.

"You guys are afraid to shoot. Why don't you start something," Wilkison was taunting the robbers, Dunham said.

One man raised a rifle as if to fire and Wilkison grappled with him. At the same time the other guests seized the remaining gunmen and a free-for all fight started.

Meanwhile a neighbor had called the police and three patrolmen arrived while the scuffle was in progress. The police opened fire and as the robbers fired back, Wilkison was fatally wounded. He was picked up from the street and died a short time later

Two of the robbers were shot in the leg and were taken to a hospital. A third was picked up soon afterward. The wounded men gave their names as Angelo Bell, 20, and Mike, 16, brothers. Angelo carried a .32 caliber pistol and Mike a rifle, police said.

Thought Holdup Joke

Guests of the party, given in honor of an engagement, at first thought the holdup men were practical jokers appearing to add a thrill to the evening.

The Bell brothers and a third youth, their faces masked with handkerchiefs and carrying two revolvers and a heavy rifle, made their way unnoticed into the living room of the mansion, guests told police.

Confronting a score of the guests, they gave the order to "Stick 'em up." There was suppressed laughter at first, and then many of the young women began slipping off their rings in attempts at concealment.

The robbers obviously were nervous and made no systematic attempt to gather the jewelry. "Easy boys, now, don't shoot 'em," cautioned one with the rifle.

The older men realized the situation and took advantage of it, crowding the robbers toward the door. One of them took to his heels through the rear, and Wilkison and his friends soon were battling the two brothers on the front lawn.

The remaining two holdup men stayed outside the house.

The Bell brothers, according to police, said they were driving home from a "target practice" when they saw the lighted windows of the Dunham house and the string of cars outside and conceived the idea of robbing the party. Angelo Bell has confessed that he shot Wilkison, according to police.

Bell later told Lieut. Starks he killed Wilkison "because he was after my brother."

Lieut. Starks said Angelo then named Ross Vaicus, 18 as the man who engineered the hold-up plot. Vaicus was captured by a police raid on his home.

Modernization Pays Returns In Beauty Attractiveness

MODERNIZING IS PROFITABLE

Value of Residence Is More Than Compensated by $2,000 Expenditure

Only a person who has modernized his home realizes the actual returns that come with the improvement of his dwelling.

Many property owners who contemplate improving their property hesitate to go ahead with their plans because they see only the bill for the modernizing. The cost in dollars and cents proves to be an obstacle in their particular case.

Yet when everything is considered the returns from modernizing more than offset the cash expenditures that are made.

Average Cost Is $2,000

A study of over 100,000 homes indicates that the average cost of modernizing a home such as is owned by the usual property owner, is $2,000. This figure includes the cost of modernizing both inside and out.

These figures are authentic, being secured from a state wide survey made by a league of building and loan associations. The figures were obtained when the home owners went to the various local associations to negotiate loans, and cover only those loans needed for modernizing.

An old house valued at $6,000 is modernized at a cost of $2,000. Theoretically its value is increased to $8,000, yet actually the modernized residence is worth, not $8,000, but $9,000 or $10,000. The investment in this property has increased its value from 12½ per cent to 15 per cent.

Instances to prove this are common. More than one owner of a modernized property has had a buyer approach with an attractive proposition after the work has been completed. The old house when made up-to-date becomes one of the most attractive in the community and its desirability immediately increases.

Modernize Inside and Out

It is not enough to modernize the interior of the house to the exclusion of the exterior. When future property values are to be considered, it is essential to modernize the exterior lines also. The attention of the outsider is always attracted first to the exterior appearance and the value of the house is first judged by its appearance from the street.

Owners who modernize the interior and neglect the exterior find that their property does not increase in the same ratio. No matter how attractive the interior decoration and how convenient the appliances which which the home is equipped, the owner still has an old appearing house if the exterior lines have not been changed.

The wise home owner is going to improve both interior and exterior by so doing he is insuring a certain increase in the value of his property. He is making it more valuable.

BRICK VENEER HOME STATELY

Old Frame Dwelling Gives Way to Artistic and Modernized Home.

It really is marvelous what modernization can do when it is given a chance to do a thorough job. The illustrations on this page are a good index to the benefits that come when an old piece of property is improved and made modern.

At the bottom is an old frame structure, an ordinary two-storied affair built back in the days when a horseless carriage was an event. Once this house was one of the handsomest on the street, but the passing of the years have left it stranded. Before modernization came, it was neglected and deserted, an eyesore of the neighborhood, for it was rapidly falling into a state of decay.

Modernization Works Wonders

Yet what a change when modernization came. Touched by the magic of modernization the old frame house became transmitted into a handsome brick veneer dwelling, showing to the left.

When the builders set to work, they tore away the two porches that may be noted in the lower illustration. These shallow open porches were typical of the architecture of many years ago, and had little character or utility. In their place was constructed small porches of a Colonial style with sharply pitched roofs. The larger porch to the front has two round white pillars supporting the roof, while the one to the side, being smaller, is supported from the wall. These porches are trimmed in white, making a striking contrast to the main color of the house.

Brick veneer was chosen as the siding because of its durability and permanence, its fireproof attributes, and its handsome appearance. Brick houses have an atmosphere of their own—they promote an air of dignity and worth and impart a feeling that their owners are solid and substantial citizens.

New Window Openings

New window trim and a complete rearrangement of the window openings and their location came with modernization. The large front window on the lower floor has been succeeded by a bay containing three double hung sash, the uppers being divided into six small panes. Above at the front the three windows have been regrouped, a single one remaining over the entrance, the other two now in one opening, thus giving more and better lighting to the interior. More windows also are now used in the side elevations. The trim of these windows in every case is white, blending with the porches in presenting a contrast that accentuates the architectural lines of the building.

The doors are of a Colonial design, in keeping with the motif of the porch. The door at the front contains beautiful panel work with no lights, the side lights alone allowing the entrance of daylight to the hall. At the side, however, the door composed of small panes of glass. Over the front door is a "fan light" of glass.

The old pitch roof which aided in giving the original building a stark upright appearance was torn away and a slate roof substituted. The roof is now on the mansard type and will last without attention for a decade or two.

New concrete walks have been built. Note in the upper illustration the trellis work forming an arch over the walk leading to the rear of the house.

Landscaping has been started, a number of shrubs having been set out near the foundations of the residence. The main entrance is flanked by dwarf pines.

The modernization of this house also called for new arrangement of rooms on the interior. The floors are now hardwood and well waxed. The walls have been refinished with the latest in interior decorative design.

ELECTRIC PAD IS USEFUL APPLIANCE

More Practical and Convenient Than Old-Fashioned Hot Water Bottle.

An electric heating-pad makes an ideal addition to the supply of household appliances that are needed from time to time.

The heating pad is the most efficient successor to the old-fashioned hot water bottle. The pad gives an even, steady heat as long as you need it. These pads may be secured with rheostats which control the degree of heat. In cases of illness the steady heat and soft wooly comfort of the pad will be most appreciated. During the cold winter nights, too, the pad is an agreeable method of keeping warm.

A warning at this point. Do not allow water to get on the pad and do not stick pins in it. The pad is electrically operated—pins and water may cause shocks.

RESTAURANT MODERN

Turoff Bros. are of the opinion that alert merchants need have no fear of the future. If they are progressive and awake to opportunities, business will come to them in increased volume, in proportion to the efforts they extend in securing it.

Visitors at Turoff's find the perfect combination of excellent food, careful preparation, expert serving and completely harmonious surroundings that makes the breakfast, luncheon or dinner a real pleasure.

Storm Windows Wise Investment for Home

The use of storm windows on the windward side of a house cuts the fuel bills approximately 15 per cent, according to engineers who have made a study of fuel consumption in relation to windows. Storm windows, fitted tightly to the window openings, prevent the entrance of drafts of cold air which filter in at the jambs, sill and meeting rail of the double hung window, to the great detriment of the heating arrangements.

The use of storm sash in connection with the usual window creates a dead air space between the outer and inner sash. This dead air space makes an insulation which is a barrier to cold.

Storm windows pay for themselves through fuel economy. They are a good investment for every home owner whose windows are loose and drafty.

Bound For Lakes

Mr. and Mrs. Pace had been married only Saturday morning at Columbus and were bound for Cedar Point on their honeymoon. It is declared the bottles found in the rear of the car were placed there by friends during the wedding ceremonies.

Two telegrams, each with a vastly different message, were dispatched to Mrs. Pace's mother in California Saturday, it was learned. One, wired at noon, told of the marriage, and the second, sent late in the afternoon, advised the mother of the daughter's death.

The body of Mrs. Pace was removed from the hospital to W. C. Boyd's mortuary yesterday and then taken to Columbus to await funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Pace before her marriage Saturday was Thelma Cassidy.

SIX IN FAMILY KILLED

Trip to Obtain Water Ends Fatally As Train Hits Car.

By The Associated Press

ST. ANTHONY, Ind., Aug 25—A trip from a farm to St. Anthony to obtain water, needed because of an extended drouth, resulted in tragedy here yesterday. Six members of a family were killed and three seriously injured when their automobile was struck by a Southern railway freight train.

William Hedinger, 35, driver of the car, apparently did not see the approaching train, his view obstructed by a cut of cars on a siding. Besides Hedinger, those killed were his brother, Theodore, 11, his sister, Irene 10, his mother-in-law Mrs. John Bieker, 55, and her two grandchildren, Leola and Bernice Bieker, 8 and 4 years old.

Mrs. William Hedinger, 34, John Bieker, 55, and Marie Bieker, 3, another grandchild, were injured. They were taken to an Evansville hospital.

EIGHT DIE IN OHIO

Traffic Accidents Take Heavy Toll in State Over Week-End.

By The Associated Press

Eight deaths and injuries to a score or more persons were marked against Ohio automobile traffic yesterday.

The dead are:

Mrs. Cotta Hotter of Troy, Paul Warnke, 24, of Port Clinton, Charles Barker, 14, of Akron, Rodolph Hedlich, 35, of Akron, Mrs. Earnest Arrington of Akron, Kenneth Harroun, 29, of Toledo, Alex Rosenfeld, 45, of Columbus, Mrs. Inez Stone, 33, of Almouth, Ky.

Mrs. Hotter lost control of her car when a bee flew in and the machine overturned on the Urbana-Columbus road 10 miles east of Urbana. Mrs. Hotter was enroute to visit her brother-in-law, Jake Nesbit, serving a life sentence in the state penitentiary for the slaying of his wife. Mrs. Hotter's husband was seriously injured.

Warnke met death as his automobile failed to make a curve four miles east of Port Clinton. Three of his companions were injured, one of them, Frederick Kumm, 22, suffering fractures of both legs.

An automobile struck the rear of a milk wagon on which young Barker was working. Hedlich's machine upset in a ditch at Edinburgh Center, causing injuries which resulted in his death. Mrs. Hedlich was badly hurt. A crash at Murray, Ky., resulted in the death of Mrs. Arrington.

A collision of two machines at McClure, near Toledo, caused the death of Harroun. Mrs. Stone was killed and her husband probably fatally injured in a collision of a street car and an automobile in Cincinnati.

Rosenfeld was killed and his wife and two sons hurt as two cars collided in Columbus.

strong, including members of affiliated patriotic societies and widows of veterans, by the time they form ranks for Wednesday's parade.

The encampment opened yesterday with the dedication of a flag-staff, standing on Eden Park's highest point overlooking the Ohio river. As thousands watched and a 21 gun salute was fired, an American flag was raised. The flagpole was the memorial of the daughters of union veterans, one of the affiliated organizations.

The dedicatory ceremony was the highlight of yesterday's program although meetings were held by affiliated groups. One of them, the federated patriotic societies, heard two men attack the daughters of the southern confederacy.

J. W. Willet of Iowa, a past commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., told the delegates they must "guard against" the "baleful influence" of the southern organization, while John R. King of Maryland, another past commander, said they must "protect the country from what I warn you is its worst enemy—the Daughters of the Confederacy."

The father of the children, M. C. Hopkins, is understood to be an inmate of the Delaware county jail where he is said to have been arrested last month. He was arrested here early last month on a charge of possession of liquor, but the case was dismissed in probate court when evidence failed to prove that Hopkins owned the liquor.

The arrest yesterday of the three was made at a house on Niles street in the western part of the city, where it is understood they have been for several days. They are reported to have been in Michigan before returning here.

EXHIBITS FEATURE OF STATE FAIR OPENING

Vaudeville Shows Each Night; Racing Program Is Outstanding.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 25—The Ohio state fair, the state's greatest agriculture exhibits, opened here today with displays of all champions in livestock, the best in grain and farm products, and many types of farm machinery, automobiles, and airplanes.

The aeronautical exhibit is among the greatest in the country, every type of military and commercial airplane is on display.

Stanley Somers of the technical date branch of Wright Field, Dayton, has charge of the military exhibit. Commercial planes of many types are in the exhibit.

Every department of state government is represented by an exhibit showing its work and progress made in recent years. Among these displays are the state highway department, the industrial relations division, the department of agriculture, the division of insurance, the fire marshal's office and many smaller sections.

Accident prevention work is the outstanding theme of the exhibit prepared by the division of safety and hygiene of the industrial relations department. The first marshal's office shows the work done by inspectors in fire prevention inspections.

One of the largest horse shows in the history of the state fair will be presented this year in the coliseum. Prize winning livestock from every section of the country will be seen at the exhibition buildings.

For the first time the new sheep barn authorized by the state legislature will be used for display purposes. This building is among the most modern in the fair grounds.

Each night during the fair week a vaudeville show will be presented in front of the grand stand and other special shows will be held at the coliseum.

The harness racing program and special features of entertainment arranged for this year outclass those of former years.

British scientists say our earth is sometimes surrounded by a ring of electricity, as Saturn is surrounded by rings.

Our occasional "ring" causes electrical storms that upset cable, telegraph and radio operations and may be responsible for tornadoes.

Tornadoes travel slowly: If you think one is coming, remember that your automobile can save you. The weather bureau says tornadoes travel always in a straight line, usually in a northeast or southeast direction, always towards the east.

Put your family in the car and start at right angles to the tornado. Do not run away ahead of it. It never turns to right or left and is not very wide. That is all you need to know.

In the early eighties, when Col. Coates, running through his Kansas City hotel, The Coates House, warned all his guests to take to the cyclone cellar, the beautiful and brave Miss Cora Baker of St. Louis observed that the yellow cyclone funnel had climbed the steep river bank above the hotel. She chartered a two-horse hack, with a young man from the East, and drove after the cyclone, observing its effects, cutting houses in two, lifting up sidewalks, etc. It did not come back and paid no attention to her—which is more than you could say of any man in Kansas City or St. Louis.

Laughs Have Prominent Place in Marion Theatergoers' Programs This Week; Marx Brothers, Keaton, Rogers Featured.

BY HALLIE HOUCK

THE laughs have it. Not artistically, perhaps, but from the standpoint of public appeal, the Marx Brothers should have Marion in stitches of laughter this week when they come to the Palace Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in their second talkie, "Animal Crackers."

Lillian Roth, a talented girl who has been quietly but steadily getting bigger and better parts comes out in this picture as their leading lady,—if four brothers could possibly agree on one such feminine asset to a picture.

Not since "The Cocoanuts" have we marvelled at such linguistic ability as that of Groucho, and reports have it that he does the same long-distance talking record in the second Marx picture. Groucho once was a different boy soprano in a New York Episcopal church. He sang also as a boy wonder soloist in a benefit show given by Father Knickerbocker for victims of the San Francisco earthquake.

Harpe is a talented harpist—hence his stage name. He's also the quartet of comedians who delights audiences with filching neckties, gold watches, etc. from unsuspecting persons. The harp which he plays so beautifully is a $12,000 instrument.

Their real front names are: "Groucho"—Julius, "Harpo"—Arthur, "Chico,"—Leonard and "Zeppo"—Herbert.

Famous Play Brings Cyril Maude's "Grumpy" Here

THE artistry of the week comes in Cyril Maude's beloved interpretation of his world-famous comedy success "Grumpy" at the Palace Friday and Saturday.

Cyril Maude, an internationally celebrated artist, created the role of "Grumpy" in 1913 and has played the part 1,300 times on the stage in all the English-speaking countries of the world. The talking picture has brought another famous stage star nearer to the great public that cannot see New York and Chicago plays.

In the cast with him are Philips Holmes, Frances Dade, Paul Lukes, Halliwell Hobbes, Paul Cavanagh, Doris Luray, Olaf Hytton, Robert Bolder and Colin Kenny.

Maude made his talking picture debut of "Grumpy" when he was 68 years old.

The story is hinged on the character of a lovable, grouchy old tyrant—a keen-minded old codger who conceals a heart of gold under a grumpy, choleric exterior. The picture is one the children will enjoy, too, critics have said.

Maude wears the same wardrobe in the picture that he wore in the 1,300 other famous presentations of his famous play. He had the "Grumpy" wardrobe made in London in 1913. Minor replacements have been made, but the suit itself is the same.

Keaton Goes to War in "Free and Easy"

After "Free and Easy," Buster Keaton' first talking picture, his public should frolic to see his second picture, "Dough Boys" at the Marion next Friday and Saturday. "Free and Easy" was a comedy knockout, and if a combination of Keaton and Cliff Edwards doesn't sound equally as funny, we don't know our comedians.

Buster Keaton.

Sally Eilers supplies the feminine interest for the show.

Being a war comedy, army props were needed. Two thousand rifles direct from army arsenals were sent to the lot for the making of the picture. Army authorities were approached and arrangements made for the loan of the necessary equipment and accessories which included tents, shells, machine guns, tanks, gas masks and barbed wire.

Keaton's latest role is that of a rookie millionaire's son and his antics at the front. Cliff Edwards substitutes a ukelele for a gun in the show. Cliff has a penchant for singing and playing in every picture he's been in, and in many of them he has stolen whole scenes from the stars.

"Women Everywhere" Has Cast of 200 Players

"WOMEN Everywhere." Yes, that's generally admitted. The Marion is bringing a picture by that name to the theater Wednesday and Thursday.

J. Harold Murray and Fifi Dorsay have the lead roles. Murray is a Broadway musical comedy star and Fifi Dorsay is the vivacious little French girl whose work in "They Had To See Paris" and "Hot for Paris," was plenty entertaining.

A crew of seamen, recruited from the port of Los Angeles, were signed for probably the strangest voyage ever undertaken since seafaring began. During the entire "voyage" their ship, a tramp steamer, never left its dock at the studio. To have done so would have entailed an overland sail of some 10 or 12 miles.

The show required a cast of over 200 players to give the necessary realism to the scene of life in Morocco, the French Foreign Legion and the battle with the Arabs in the desert.

Continuing tonight and Tuesday at the Marion is Edmund Lowe in "Born Reckless."

The Stars Say—

Tuesday, August 26

A DAY of conflicting interests and events is foreshown by the opposing forces strong among the leading planets. Although employment and new undertakings are under favorable sway, yet there may be stubborn obstacles to encounter, with delay, disappointments, and also malignant conflict and opposition. Cool demeanor and positive self-restraint, with every precaution in making agreements, may swerve the affairs into prosperous and safe channels. A personal enmity is seen.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year in which much depends upon personal discretion and self-control. With these and a general precaution and alertness against enmity, affairs should prosper, especially employment and new ventures. A child born on this day may have much to overcome in its own disposition in the way of self government and development before he succeeds in those places where his definite talents and qualities would be prized. He may be clever and versatile, but stubborn, impulsive and quarrelsome.

BUCYRUS, Aug. 25—Miss Julia Hoffsis, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Hoffsis, of Sulphur Springs and Claypool Perry, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Perry of near Monnette were chosen Saturday to represent Crawford county at the State Fair at Columbus this week in the state health contest, when the healthiest boy and girl in the state will be selected.

Miss Hoffsis is a member of the Sulphur Springs 4-H summer clothing club, of which she recently served as president. She is a freshman at Sulphur Springs consolidated school. Perry is a senior at Mt. Zion school and is affiliated with the Mt. Zion poultry club.

Three former state health champs have been selected from Crawford county, Milton Hawkins of Lykens taking that honor last year and Albert Oder, Lykens, and James Rice, Sulphur Springs, in previous years.

AMERICANS IN ZONE

Washington Reports Say Much U. S. Money Invested in Peru.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25—American investments of considerable size are believed by commercial observers in the capital to be directly in the path of the armed outbreak in Peru.

State department and Peruvian officials, however, were without official word of any kind early today from the distrubed South American country, and refrained from comment on the situation.

An important American development, the Cerro De Pasco mine of the Guggenheim interests lies just north of Arequipa, reported in the hands of insurgents.

American capital in Peru was believed to exceed the combined investments of all other foreign countries. Mining operations, petroloum and public utilities were listed as the three major fields for American investment. However, with the exception of the Guggenheim interest which penetrate the length of the republic, most of the American capital is lodged in Lima and in the northern section.

DETROIT KIDNAP RING MEMBER FACES LIFE

Self-Appointed "Rat" of the Underworld May Get Long Stretch.

By International News Service

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 25—Benjamin Rubenstein, self-appointed "rat" of the underworld and admitted member of Detroit's notorious kidnap-murder ring, which is alleged to have collected thousands of dollars ransom in 28 gangland abductions, today faces a maximum sentence of life imprisonment following his conviction on a kidnaping charge.

Harry Hallisey, his co-defendant and member of a prominent Detroit family, whose fashionable home became known as the "kidnaping farm" was freed by the same jury after 30 hours of deliberation. He was immediately rearrested on a similar charge, however.

The two were charged specifically with the abduction of Reuben Cohen, a business man, on Aug. 28, 1928, when $7,100 ransom was paid. Five other alleged members of the clique are now serving terms in the Jackson state penitentiary.

Operations of the gang are alleged to have extended over more than a five-year period. During that time, the state charged, Hallisey's home was used to "detain" the victims, who were strapped to abed and chained to a chimney alternatively. Some of the 28 known victims said they had been tortured.

By The Associated Press

Newton D. Baker, of defense counsel, took up the cross examination where he left off Friday when he told the court that he expected to prove Eaton opposed the Bethlehem deal because he had "other plans" for Sheet & Tube.

Eaton testified that between the time he became interested in Trumbull steel and the time that company was taken into Republic steel, Continental Shares, Inc., a $150,000,000 investment concern was organized and that one of its purposes was to promote the consolidation between Trumbull and Republic. Radio Relief in Offing.

There's a note of encouragement to harrassed radio listeners in the announcement from Washington that broadcasting channels are to be cleared, flagrant violators of wave length and time schedule regulations ruled off the air and programs rated on their merits.

This readjustment of the country's broadcasting set-up is to follow a nation-wide survey which has been started by the radio division of the department of commerce at the behest of the federal radio commission.

The aim of the survey is two-fold. One will be to determine which stations of the 600 now operating have programs of sufficient merit to justify their continued use of the air. The other will be to establish which stations have been violating their broadcasting schedules and causing a condition which prompted the federal radio commission to ask for the survey.

Every broadcasting station in the country is to be checked by the supervisors and inspectors of the radio division, pursuant to the commission's request. Preference of listeners through key agencies in all communities will be solicited.

Out of the survey is expected to develop a system of rating stations according to program merit. A similar proposal was considered during the radio investigation last year, but the facilities for conducting a preliminary survey were lacking. It was pointed out at that time that checkup must of necessity and out of fairness, precede any radical changes from the present system.

To further insure fairness in the evaluation of stations, William D. Terrell, chief of the department of commerce's radio division, has suggested that an individual or a special board should review the finding of the supervisors.

It is high time that steps be taken to control the growing child of radio broadcasting lest it develop beyond the point of regulation. Within recent months there has been howling evidence of two or more stations trying to operate on the same wavelength.

Some of the smaller stations are bound to suffer in the readjustment. But those which have sufficiently meritorious programs will have an equal chance with the more powerful stations, the department of commerce has assured.

The average man, who, after the evening meal is finished, eases tired feet into house slippers, fills the bowl of his favorite pipe and sits down to read the evening paper or a book with a radio tuned in to make his evening more enjoyable, is primarily more concerned with good reception than with a particular program.

Under the ambitious set-up planned by the department of commerce, the radio listener will have this assurance—that if there are a dozen clear stations, he stands a fair chance of dialing in on a suitable program, and having found entertainment to his liking, will not have the program spoiled by interference from a station which serves no vital purpose.

It is a program that the long-suffering radio public has awaited.

There's no ground for great elation over the promised fifty-cent books. If they do not show improvement over the big end of recent fiction, they will not be worth anything like the new price.

"Mass production in industry is one thing," says Stanley Baldwin, "but in ideas and opinions it is another." If we get the Baldwin idea; in ideas and opinions it usually results in a mess.

Italian Under-Secretary Leoni is quoted as saying: "We have a definite sense of gradual return to normalcy." That word, normalcy, certainly has traveled some distance since its rediscovery ten years ago.

"It is difficult for me, even though a parson," remarks the Rev. W. W. Wimberly, "to become reconciled either to the wisdom or the Christianity of the eighteenth amendment." No occasion to worry about the matter, W. W. You have enough company to nullify the charge that you are a freak in that respect.

London reports that "fashionable" women there are having their arms and backs tattooed and that some have had flowered garters tattooed above their knees.' That word, "fashionable," certainly has been used to cover a multitude of sins. It has literally been worked "to a frazzle," as the late Colonel Roosevelt would say.

Returning to the scenes of his boyhood near Webster Springs, West Virginia, D. C. Dotson came upon a turtle into the shell of which he and a neighbor boy had carved their initials thirty-three years before, and it was in the same field in which they had originally found it. We are beginning to lose our respect for that fable about the tortoise and the hare.

Mr. Bennett Goes To Work.

The United States took more than an ordinary amount of interest in the Canadian general election three weeks ago. But, after it was clear that R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader, was going to replace Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Liberal leader for nine years, interest lagged. What an awful thing it would be, to be sure, if it were not so easy to forget the bombastery of an election—and what an unfortunate thing for the candidates.

Now it is Prime Minister Bennett and plain Mr. King. The latter, however, holds the position of leader of His Majesty's loyal opposition, a post recognized by law and made comfortable by a $10,000-a-year salary, $5,000 less than is paid the prime minister himself.

Strangely enough, unemployment, which was one of the straw men of the campaign preceding the Canadian election, seems to be stored away for the time being. Mr. King was not able to do much about it; Prime Minister Bennett fancied he would have better luck. He must have been right because Canadian dispatches say that business has shown unmistakable signs of improvement. This may be only temporary, however. Worse yet it may be only the skill of the Conservative press which has supported Mr. Bennett nobly in every instance. The next year will tell the whole story. Prime Minister Bennett's budget is expected to aim at the construction of a tariff which will solve the employment problem through encouragement of Canadian industry and agriculture. "Encouragement" means to alarmists in the United States construction of a tariff wall between this country and Canada.

Before September, Prime Minister Bennett must get the machinery of his party assembled and oiled. He has also to prepare his case for the imperial economic conference in London the last of the month and must decide who will appear with him at the sittings. All this must be done with material which even he must recognize as untried in many ways.

While Canada's new prime minister goes to work, it is interesting to compare his job with the one President Hoover faced in 1928. Mr. Bennett is expected to bring order out of perplexities; Mr. Hoover was expected to keep order from falling into perplexities. In Canada, perhaps, it is Mr. King who can sympathize best with both men.

"It is not the law that makes the custom," is the way Brand Whitlock puts it, "but the custom that makes the law, and when statutes run counter to custom they are impotent." One might think that the former diplomat is not wholly in sympathy with the prohibition amendment.

A survey made in New York City shows that a great number of automobile accidents there are caused by chronic repeaters, a small percentage of careless drivers being responsible for the major percentage of accidents, twenty per cent. of those figuring in accidents being responsible for forty-five per cent. of the accidents during 1929. It's a confirmation of the long-maintained view that the great majority of motorists are careful and law-abiding.

Tom Corwin's Maiden Speech.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

Tom Corwin's maiden speech in the Ohio legislature was made against a bill proposing lashes on the bare back for imprisonment for petty larceny. It was the twenty-first legislative session, Corwin being one of the new members of the house. The membership was not remarkable for its ability, and it is not strange that Corwin "shone." Thomas Worthington, who did not disdain to serve in the lower house after leaving the governor's office, was the outstanding member. Eleuthurous Cooke, father of Jay Cooke, represented Erie county. Ephriam Cutler, son of Manasseh, was also a member. He had been the first of the constitutional convention.

The whipping-post bill, as it was called, had its main support from Hamilton county and because of this fact and the notoriously bad conditions known to prevail at the jail of that county, Corwin censured the authorities of the county severely. His speech attracted much attention and earned for Corwin the distinction of personal preference in the editorial columns of the Cincinnati Gazette, the editor closing his reference to him with an expression of regret in having to thus criticize "Mr. Corwin who, we understand, is a young man of considerable promise." The name of the editor has faded away, but not as long as Ohio stands will that of Tom Corwin be forgotten.

Corwin did not kill the whipping-post bill in the house, but it was lost in the senate by a tie vote of sixteen to sixteen. The young representative was also deeply interested in securing the passage of a bill to abolish imprisonment for debt, but failed to secure its passage.

It is interesting to note that in this legislature sat as a colleague with ex-Governor Worthington, representative of Ross county, Allison C. Looker, a son of Governor Othniel Looker, whom Worthington had defeated for governor in 1814. The same legislature in special session redistricted the state for congress, Ohio being entitled to fourteen congressmen, just double the number it had had before. Only New York, Pennsylvania and Virginia had larger delegations in congress. North Carolina had a larger population but, many being slaves, did not count in the congressional representation.

OUR POLICY.

Editorial Opinion.

AND MORE'S THE PITY.

The great American game of baseball is not what it used to be. The people are not following it as they used to. They now miss the finer points of playing. All that counts nowadays is the big punch. A decade or so ago a sixth-place club could pack the stands late in August; but today the top of the league has trouble in holding the crowd. Thus saith Ty Cobb. A host of fans will agree with his opinion.

The responsibility for the decline of interest in baseball does not rest entirely with the bleacherites. The ultra-professionalization of big league ball did much to bring it into disrepute with the multitude. Scandal may have been driven to the showers and pennants may again be honestly striven for; but to the man in the stand professional baseball remains, at best, a contest between hired gladiators, who haven't the attractive power of local contestants, while at its worst it is an object of suspicion.

At the same time our great national game has been subjected to increased competition from several different directions. The rise of physical education has taken a lot of fans out of the grandstand and set them chasing a little white ball around a golf course, which affords them exercise as well as entertainment. Automobiles now take people into the country, who formerly never got further from home than the ball park. The radio has brought baseball into the drawing-room and kitchen, where it also brings religious services; and attendance at ball games has fallen off in consequence, as has church attendance. And in all the chances of professional baseball recovering the position in this country that it once held but has been steadily losing in recent years are not bright.—Detroit Free Press.

Towns of Hoferland.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

Say Hoferland to the average—indeed to a vast majority of the American travelers in Europe and they won't know what you are talking about. Speak of the Tyrol and their eyes light with the scenes of beauty they remember there. Yet they are one and the same thing.

The Tyrolese always refer to their land as Hoferland in honor of the patriot Andreas Hofer, their great hero whose grave in Innsbruck is surmounted by a statue which is always draped with black crepe in memory of the lost province of South Tyrol.

The traveler from America, never considering how his own native ways must amuse the people of Europe, finds a rich field for astonishment in the costumes and ways of the people of the Tyrol. Indeed, Innsbruck is one of the half dozen or so cities of Europe which never fail in glamour to the American traveler. With its own history the city takes only a mild interest in the high jinks going on in its neighbor, Vienna, or in the political struggle which keeps the Republic of Austria up nights. The history of the Tyrol itself is sufficient thrill for its people.

But to get back to the Tyrolese and their ways. Suppose we discuss the picturesque costumes first. In the valley of the Montafonerthal the dress of the women is seen at its best. The women of the Tyrol are far from emancipated in their costumes. Indeed one wonders how they manage to survive the heat of the summer dolled up in their shiny black garments, tight sleeves and tight bodices and skirts that sweep the dust after the fashion of this country in the first part of this century. And their hair is never bobbed. It is coiled tightly on top of the head from which point it acts as a rack for very large, high hats. But there is this distinction to the Hoferland girls' hats; they usually are ornamented with lots of gold tassels and a generous lot of cloth of gold on the underside of the brim. In some parts of the Tyrol, however, these hats are replaced by tall black cones.

The costumes of the men are not quite so striking, nevertheless they are unique. The men run heavily to whiskers and with the short Boy Scout trousers and bare legs affected in certain parts of the Tyrol they make a rather surprising picture to those not accustomed to the sight of bearded boys. But it is easy to tell they are not boys because they smoke pipes instead of cigarets.

On dress-up occasions the male Tyrolean does himself proud, sartorially. Vivid velvet "pants," still a la Boy Scout, frilled shirt and a cone-shaped hat to match the costume make him a colorful sight. It gets pretty cold in some parts of the Tyrol, too, but not too cold for the Boy Scout trousers and the bare legs.

Parents' Big Task.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

At every time in their lives boys and girls need the care and guidance of wise parents. This oversight is particularly important between the ages of ten and sixteen, and even later.

The foundation of physical growth have been laid long before this time. What happens to children, and how they take what happens to them at this age of their development may not affect permanently their physical health. But who can doubt it may determine the way they are going to meet the ups and downs of later life?

Up to the age of ten or eleven years it is natural for normal children to associate together in unconcerned fashion. But girls will be girls, and boys will be boys. Very soon now the difference between the sexes will be noted.

This is a time when the sex instinct begins to assert itself. The boys and girls need the wisdom and understanding of their parents or other kindly guardian. Wise heads are needed to counsel and guide the children at this critical time. For it is indeed a critical time.

Play and sports are splendid outlets for the superabundant energy developed in these years. Camp life in the out-of-doors has come to be one of the fine institutions for children of this age. In hundreds of camps throughout the country thousands of our boys and girls are under the guidance of wise counselors. They are enjoying properly directed sports and the healthful companionship of other children.

Enough can not be said of the merit and achievements of the Boy and Girl Scout movements, both in this country and abroad. The very finest leaders are chosen to direct the moral and physical development of millions of boys and girls in the making of future citizens of every nation. What a splendid thing it is!

It is at this period of life that a broader, wholesome interest in the world's doings, past and present, is developed. This should be encouraged. The reading of splendid books of adventure, history and art, biography, sports and animal life are to be highly commended.

On the other hand, it is wise to discourage the reading of morbid tales of crime and adventure of that sort. Wise and gentle counsel should be given on sex matters by the parent or physician.

One of the parent's big jobs is being an intimate associate of a boy or girl at this period. Talk with your child on all subjects. Independence of thought and behavior must be developed. Discourage any morbid sensitiveness or brooding over the trivial ups and downs of life. One of the mistakes of adolescence is "to make mountains out of molehills," to take everything too seriously, and the serious ones not serious enough.

To teach a child care of the body and how to act and think wisely takes the patience of Job and the wisdom of Solomon. When any unusual symptom arises in health or behavior it is a good thing to talk to and receive the counsel of a competent physician. Many a time such a procedure changes the child's whole future for the better.

Metchnikoff.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

In the minds of most people of the present generation, the name of Metchnikoff is associated with the fad of drinking sour milk for the digestion. Indeed, we can all recall the innumerable jokes in the comic papers about buttermilk and sour milk, about the longevity of the Bulgarians, who lived principally upon sour milk, about the gallons of sour milk Metchnikoff was supposed to drink every day. One of the works which he published for the general public was entitled "The Prolongation of Human Life," and deals with the theory that man's life is unnecessarily shortened by the poisonous products which are formed in the alimentary canal by certain microbes.

Metchnikoff had a sound theory, which remains to be proven effective in practice. This theory is that the dangerous microbes can only live in an alkaline medium, and lactic acid will destroy them. The question is one of depositing the lactic acid in that portion of the bowel where its action is needed. There is considerable doubt as to whether this is accomplished merely by taking the lactic fluid by mouth.

Elic Metchnikoff was born of Jewish parents at Kharkoff in Russia, on May 15, 1845. He early developed what we may call a superiority complex, and felt sure that he was naturally a great genius. He received a first-class education studying at the gymnasium and then at the University of Kharkoff, and later prosecuting zoological researches at Giessen, Goettingen and Munich.

After becoming professor of zoology at Odessa, he made various zoological expeditions—to Madeira, Teneriffe and the Kamuck steppes. His first studies were made upon low forms of invertebrate animals, and he published many scientific papers. He was extremely ingenious in his methods of research; but rather inclined, because of a highly-excitable and impetuous nature, to publish prematurely results not verified with complete success.

Metchnikoff's great discovery came to him by accident, and changed the entire current of his life. It turned his attention to large issues affecting vitally the human race—the subjects of immunity, longevity, and the general health of the human body. In studying star-fish, he conceived the idea that the white cells or wandering cells were defensive mechanisms, which hurried to a center of infection and combated the virulent germs. A single experiment convinced him that he had discovered the secret of all immunity to disease. From this time forward for many years his thought and experimentation were devoted to completing and confirming his theory.

The first thoroughly convincing experiments conducted were made on water-fleas. If the phagocytes or eating-cells hurried to the defense of the organism at the point of infection and ate the virulent germs of infection or dispelled them, the water-flea got well. But if the phagocytes delayed too long to go to the rescue, the infection germs got in their deadly work and the water-flea died. By a series of extended investigations covering many years and involving him in numerous and heated controversies with other scientists, Metchnikoff fully justified and confirmed his theory. His book on "Immunity in Infective Diseases" is now ranked as a classic.

Metchnikoff will long be remembered, also, as Pasteur's successor to the directorship of the Pasteur institute in Paris. In 1908 he was awarded the Nobel prize in medicine. He was an inspiring leader in humanity's unending warfare with disease. — Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, Aug. 25—Uncle Sam employs 200 people every year because letter writers have not yet learned how to use the mails properly.

Last year some 25,000,000 pieces of mail found their way to the dead letter offices located in five different parts of the country.

Of this number, 19,000,000—carrying correspondence only—had to be destroyed because no clues to the identity of either sender or intended recipient could be found.

Here in the capital is one of these five sectional receiving offices for undeliverable mail. And every day it gets about 200 absolutely blank envelopes.

This is the most valuable class of dead mail, because it contains a high proportion of checks, drafts, money orders and the like.

It was only recently that one such envelope was found to contain a check for $165,000. A Canadian railroad was trying to send the amount to a Mississippi lumber firm. By the time the error was adjusted, it is estimated that more than $1,000 in interest was involved.

* * *

These blank envelopes contain all sorts of things. There are legal papers of every description, photographs, kid gloves, silk stockings—even locks of hair.

A $10,000 bond found in an unaddressed envelope recently turned out to be a part of the loot in a mail robbery.

At another time there came a series of letters full of hundred dollar bills. They were addressed to a girl in the Middle West, who presumably had left town after getting the first three.

Postal authorities have an idea that the girl's lover staged a profitable holdup. The money will be turned into the treasury unless a lawful owner can be located.

The postoffice department prides itself on the fact that more than ninety-nine per cent. of valuable paper is eventually returned to the careless senders.

* * *

Everything more valuable than a five-cent postage stamp is kept. Last year property worth $5,425,000 was found in dead mail, but the government realized only $250,000 from it.

It received $81,000 from auctioning undeliverable parcel post packages. There were taken from letters $48,000 in cash. Postage stamps to the amount of $32,000 were salvaged. And $80,000 in fees for delivering dead letters was realized.

Three cents is charged for the delivery or return of dead mail for which an owner can be found.

The postoffice department has in its possession a pretty wooden Christmas box as a prize exhibit. It contains a gun attached to the latch which probably would have killed the recipient if it hadn't gone off in the postoffice beforehand.

Son-in-Law—"Neither did I. I thought that you would give us enough to enable us to live independently."

Two modern little girls, on their way home from Sunday-school, were solemnly discussing the lesson.

"Do you believe there is a devil?" asked one.

"No," said the other, promptly. "It's like Santa Claus; it's your father."

Revellers To Be Featured in New Program Series

A NEW series of General Motors Family Party programs featuring the quartet known as the Revellers, and a specially organized string orchestra conducted by Frank Black, as well as Black as piano soloist, begins Monday at 8:30 p. m. over the WEAF network.

In honor of the Republic of Uruguay which celebrates Monday the anniversary of its recognition as an independent country by Spain, Brazil and the Argentine, Black has made a special scoring of "Cuando Quieras Llorar" (When You Want to Cry), a popular Uruguayan pasillo, or dance tune by Paredes-Lucchesi. This will be played by the orchestra.

During the broadcast the quartet will be heard in four numbers which have been selected as leaders among the most popular songs they sing. To open the program the four, with Black at the piano, will do vocal tricks with George Gershwin's irresistible "Strike Up the Band," from the musical comedy of that title.

• • •

The modern Harlem Negro spiritual "Rockin' Chair," has been selected by the Maytag Orchestra as the featured number on the program to be heard from the NBC Chicago Studios Monday at 8 p. m.

Henry Burbig, dialect comedian, will be featured during "Burbig's Syncopated History" to be broadcast over WABC and the Columbia Broadcasting network Monday at 7 p. m. Henry will be assisted by the orchestra and a male quartet.

REGAL ROBES

Dame Fashion's fondness for stately attire, as contrasted with the jaunty flapper modes of recent years, is strikingly indicated by this regal costume for evening wear. It is of flesh-colored chiffon massed with tiny crystal beads in exquisite design. With the gown is worn a magnificent wrap of pink velvet bordered with ermine.

Science Puts Into Sugar-Coated Tablets All the Benefits of Cod Liver Oil

No human being can keep in touch with all the amazing scientific developments of today. For instance, have you heard of the robot (mechanical man) which steers a steamship better than the most skillful pilot?

Or have you heard of the new process by which the wonderful flesh, bone, strength and energy increasing elements (vitamins) are taken from pure Norwegian cod liver oil and put into tablets whose only taste is their sugar coating?

This wonderful discovery—McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets, sold by all druggists—is at least as beneficial as the best liquid cod liver oil and a whole lot easier to take, digest and assimilate.

A ten-year-old New Jersey boy picked up amazingly fast on McCoy's, gaining 10 pounds in 21 days and delighting his mother with his all-round physical improvement. Thin, weak, nervous, rundown and underweight men, women and children can take McCoy's with complete confidence. For they are developed by exceptionally skillful and experienced chemists.

Furthermore, McCoy's have been tested and approved by the Good Housekeeping Bureau of Foods, Sanitation and Health. And Henney & Cooper guarantees them—60 tablets 60 cents.—Adv.

ROMANCE AND ADVENTURES OF A DARING TEXAS GIRL

Copyright 1930, Duffield & Company

CHAPTER 29
Beyond the Sand Dunes

DAGGER enjoyed her experiences even while learning to adjust herself to the camel's awkward gait. Gradually, Sidi Marut relaxed his attitude of aloofness. He would ride beside her on the march, and stop at her tentdoor evenings, chatting of the country they traversed, reciting hero-tales of his people, the lore of the Koran, the story of El-Senussi and his disciples, who had revolted against the degenerate modern interpretation of the Prophet's message, and in the most distant oases of the Libyan desert organized the nucleus of a reformed creed which was spreading like a flame from Darfur to Chinese Turkestan.

She was tempted to ask him their present mission, for day by day they continued along the sea-coast, seldom out of sight of the waves, and she had supposed they would head inland for the desert; but she was confident that she would learn more by patience. And in the end she was rewarded.

They had almost reached the borders of Tunis, and were camped in a grove of cedars. He came to her that night, as she sat on her saddle beside a small fire one of the men had kindled for her—they were all kind, all treated her with exquisite courtesy, saluting her respectfully as Lalla Meryem, the Lady of the Lance.

"Lalla," he began abruptly, "you must have wondered to what purpose we journeyed?"

"I haven't asked," she pointed out, smiling.

"And having remained discreet," he returned, smiling, too, "you shall be instructed. We of the Senussi have difficulty in acquiring arms since the war, and a part of my mission is to arrange for shipments. A boat has landed a quantity from Greece close by here. In the night we shall collect them. If the French discover us, now or later, there will be trouble for all whom they capture. Will you leave us, and go on to Tunis? I can spare you men and beasts. You shall be safe."

"I wouldn't think of it," cried Dagger. "Why I knew all he gun-runners on the Mexican border—our part of it, at least. I know a lot about gun-running Sidi."

His bow was a gesture of applause.

That night there was much bustling in the cedar grove. In the morning Dagger saw that the caravan had doubled in size. Guns and cartridges were deftly concealed in bales of miscellaneous merchandise. And the route followed, now, trended directly south, steering wide of all the larger towns and garrisoned posts, where French officials or patrols might ask embarrassing questions.

Traveling in this roundabout, stealthy fashion added materially to the mileage; weeks slipped imperceptibly into one another—and became months. Sometimes at first, they were in a country fairly well-watered, although mountainous; but after they had stolen past Tougourt, and crossed the Wadi Igharghar into the rear marshes of Tunis the Sahara enwrapped them.

Dagger became hard and ruddy-brown, the desert brown that is more red. She could ride all day, without weariness, drinking a few mouthfuls of murky water, eating a handful of dates or couscous or curdled milk or cheese, once in a while a mess of eggs. She learned Arabic and conversed in jerky sentences with fierce-eyed men.

In after-years she came to learn something of the anomalous position she filled. She realized that the strange men who visited the caravan or traveled with it for stretches, and were trussed with the truth, would have refused to believe in her virtue but for the fact that Sidi Marut vouched for her.

Sidi Marut was a great man in the desert, as great a man as the governors-general in their palaces in Tunis and Algiers. She heard talk which indicated a relentless, undying hatred of foreign domination.

In all the sandy hinterland of the desert, behind the sweep of the High Atlas, south to the Cameroons and the Congo, the desert tribes and their negro converts dreamed of the day when Islam should revive its conquest.

But strangely, Dagger's racial pride wasn't affronted, perhaps because Sidi Marut's philosophy appealed to her by its rugged honesty and sincerity. He believed in the virtue of the soul, in penitence, in self-sacrifice, in triumph by works. In him was the stuff of the dissenters of the Reformation, a faith that was saved from harshness by the innate sweetness of the man. Do what you believe right, he preached. Seek the truth, and when you find it, make it yours. In love of Allah, in obedience to Allah's word, lies salvation.

Once they were attacked by a wandering tribe of Bedawi, pillagers, who whirled out from behind a sandhill, and strove to come to close quarters, where their numbers would have overwhelmed the Sidi's men.

Dagger had her first experience of human combat, and despite the sick feeling at the pit of her stomach as she cuddled her cheek to a rifle butt, she liked the thrill of it—until the Bedawi had whirled away in retreat, leaving behind them half a dozen sprawled figures, bare legs sticking grotesquely out of the folds of dirty burnouses. But the Sidi dismissed her compunctions with a wave of the hand.

"Those who would steal must be punished," he said. "Those who would take human life must expect to lose their lives."

It was true, she admitted; but again she had had brought home to her Howard's misgivings, and realized with increased clarity the processes his mind had followed. In fact, almost every day she was learning things which brought her into closer touch with him, making her appreciate more the fine balance of his attitude toward the problems of the spirit.

This was especially true after the caravan had reached its destination, the remote oasis of Kufra, where El-Senussi, himself, ruled jointly as pontiff and feudal lord, with a simplicity that was biblical. She was amazed by the relative poverty, the smallness, of this center of an influential creed. A village, scarcely a town, of white-washed mud houses; a few thousand people, an unpretentious mosque. And the thoughts which emanated from it were rocking a faith shared by millions of diverse races.

Under Sidi Marut's tutelage, she grasped the psychology of the desert mind and the idealism and fanatical determination which were the soul of Islam, faith militant.

Perhaps it was this very breath of fiery energy and earnest seeking for the absolute which ultimately spurred her restlessness. She liked to listen to the Sheikh and his familiars, discussing the problems of Islam and the ideal way of life. There was a freshness, a genuineness, here that the west lacked.

But presently she felt that she had learned all that she required, and a great urge came to her to journey on into the east. The Sidi argued with her gently. Was she not happy? Yes. Why not linger on? In the oasis she was loved and respected. She might set an example to the women. To himself she should be a sister. The Sheikh had said publicly that she was fit to be the mother of warriors. But Dagger had no instinct for motherhood, no more inclination to enter a harem than to reign in the Hotel de Pontoise.

All she wanted or needed was the stimulation of her search for the ashes of Howard's memory—for that was what it amounted to.

And so one morning she said goodby to the Sheikh and her other friends, and climbed upon the camel the Sidi held for her. He went with her, he and an escort of picked fighting men. It was no trouble, he assured her, in reply to her protestations. There was work for him in Libya and Egypt. He'd carry her at least as far as a frontier station, whence she might arrange for conveyance to Alexandria.

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

YESTERDAY was Sunday, and I don't believe I slept so very well, even if I did have one arm around Jubilee. Because I was thinking of my grandfather's fishpole when I went to sleep, and a fella can't sleep very good when he has busted his grandfather's fish-pole, so I mustn't have. I woke up early too, and I thought how much my grandfather's pole must have costed, and I wondered what I was going to do about it. Then I had to let Jubilee down out of the window by his rope and go down and milk the dumined brutes. And the bunch wanted to know if I had told my grandfather, and that made me so nervous I could hardly hit the pail with the squirts while I was milking.

When I had went in and fed my face and got washed by my aut, with the bunch standing outside the kitchen door hooraswing me and copy-catting the faces I made, and I had throwed the wash water all over them when my ant got done, and I had went outside to go and chase my cows, I seen my grandfather out by the front fence smoking his pipe, so I told the bunch to go over to the vacant lot and wait for me, and they did. Then I snuck up to my grandfather and rubbed up against him. And he put one arm acrosst my shoulders, and then the first thing I knew I was telling him what I had done, and I began to cry, and I could feel him holding me tighter and tighter. And when I got done he said: "Don't think no more about it, Grand. All the fishing rods in the world aren't worth one little boy's tears." Gee! I bet that is why they are called grandfathers. He thought more about the fish than he did about the pole. He asted me all about it, how it bit and fit and all. He said it must've been a sturgeon which had wandered down from up near Vermillion where most of them are caught, but sturgeons didn't bite like that. So then I went after the bunch and took my cows out and went to Sunday school.

My grandfather didn't get home till after supper last night, and the back of his neck and his nose was almost sunburnt off. He said he had been fishing out near Rocky River but hadn't got a strike. I wish he had caught the biggest fish in the lake.

Today was Monday. There was a strange calf in the pasture and we tied a rope around its stummick, and Niba got on and hung onto the rope and we turned it loose and it began to run and blatt and jump, and an old cow came out of the bushes and took after it, and just when it was going to catch it, it throwed Niba off on his stummick and he rolled into the creek to get away from its mother, and climb out on the other side. He was certainly white. He was lucky he didn't get horned.

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Is Puzzled.

MY first astonished look at Mary was involuntary, and I quickly schooled my face to composure. Whatever had happened between her and Noel to cause her pettish little outburst—"Don't call it my party!"—it was the part of wisdom to ignore it.

"Well, then, call it mine," I said, laughing. "Anyway, I need your advice, so come with me."

"Gladly," she said, and there was the flick of a whiplash in her voice as she rose and came toward me. I saw Noel's hand go out toward her in an appeal that I guessed was involuntary, for the next instant he had dropped it to his side again as he stood punctiliously to await our passing from the room.

Temper Displayed.

"Please tell Mrs. Underwood that I am in the dining room if she wishes to see me again before going over to Mrs. Brixton's," I said, and I hardly heard his low-toned courteous assent, so engrossed was I in getting Mary out of the room before the explosion of her temper which I guessed was imminent.

"Why is a man, anyway?" she sputtered almost before I had closed the door of the Underwood apartment, and I unlocked the door of our own room and drew her inside before I answered. I felt that I needed the extra time to control my laugh muscles, for her plaint, delivered in tragic tones, was irresistibly funny.

"That's a question every woman asks at some time or other in her life," I told her. "Fortunately the anger which makes them ask it rarely lasts long enough for them to get a real answer."

"It'll last long enough with me," she muttered rebelliously. "But I'm not going to bother you about it, Auntie Madge. I promise to stand without hitching for two or three hours, anyway, so take me along to the dining room if you want to. And—I'm sorry I said it wasn't my party when you've been so perfectly adorable about everything for me. I fancy you've guessed, though, that that particular little spiel was for Noel's benefit."

"Yes, I surmised something of the sort," I told her, smiling, as I opened the door again and ushered her into the corridor. I was relieved to see Lillian emerging from her own door, for I wished no further discussion of Mary's grievance, whatever it was, until she should have had time to rein in her temper.

"Noel said you were in the dining room," Lillian said reproachfully, but with a smile quirking the corners of her mouth.

"We're on our way there," I told her. "I only spoke of it to Noel for fear you might want to give me some message before you left."

"No, nothing on the old bean at present save the price of sub-deb evening frocks," she retorted. "You'll be around the hotel bit rest of the day, won't you?"

"I don't expect to leave it again," I answered. "All my errands except telephone ones are finished."

She spread her hands and made me an elaborate bow, while I thanked my particular joss for an empty corridor.

"Lady, take my hat," she entreated. "Efficiency, thy name is——"

"Please keep quiet," I entreated in a low voice as the elevator stopped at our floor.

"As you wish," she said with pretended hauteur, and preserved a lofty air during our descent. As we left the elevator she said with ostentatious dignity:

"Mary, will you please convey the information to your high-born relative that she will receive a telephone call from a worm of the dust as soon as said worm finds out what are the colors of the evening gowns, or has any other information which the aforesaid high-born relative ought to hear?"

She turned abruptly and walked regally to the door without a backward glance. Mary giggled outright, the elevator man choked back a chuckle, and even my exasperation could not keep back a wry smile of my own. A second's reflection banished any possible annoyance, for I knew that when Mary could giggle she could harbor no rancor, and that her resentment against Noel, whatever is the cause, would soon be dissipated.

An Unexpected Message

We went into the dining room, almost deserted at this hour, and spent a quiet quarter of an hour with Mr. Seibel. At the end I stood up with the assurance that every detail of the arrangements for Mary's party with the exception of the decorations would be complete without any further thought on my part.

"I shall be back at 2 o'clock when the decorator and the flowers arrive," I told Mr. Seibel.

"We shall be ready for you," he said with a deferential but confident little bow, and Mary hardly waited until we were out of earshot before exclaiming:

"Honestly, Auntie Madge, I can't tell which knows how to fry the onions best, you or Mr. Seibel. Mrs. Underwood sure had the right dope when she called you——"

"Hush!" I whispered peremptorily as we went through the swinging doors to the lobby, almost running against Purnell.

"Mr. Graham is on the wire in the booth," he explained hurriedly. "I was just coming into the dining room after you."

"That's a question every woman asks at some time or other in her life," I told her. "Fortunately the anger which makes them ask it rarely lasts long enough for them to get a real answer."
"It'll last long enough with me," she muttered rebelliously. "But I'm not going to bother you about it, Auntie Madge. I promise to stand without hitching for two or three hours, anyway, so take me along to the dining room if you want to. And—I'm sorry I said it wasn't my party when you've been so perfectly adorable about everything for me. I fancy you've guessed, though, that that particular little spiel was for Noel's benefit."
"Yes, I surmised something of the sort," I told her, smiling, as I opened the door again and ushered her into the corridor. I was relieved to see Lillian emerging from her own door, for I wished no further discussion of Mary's grievance, whatever it was, until she should have had time to rein in her temper.
"Noel said you were in the dining room," Lillian said reproachfully, but with a smile quirking the corners of her mouth.
"We're on our way there," I told her. "I only spoke of it to Noel for fear you might want to give me some message before you left."
"No, nothing on the old bean at present save the price of sub-deb evening frocks," she retorted. "You'll be around the hotel bit rest of the day, won't you?"
"I don't expect to leave it again," I answered. "All my errands except telephone ones are finished."
She spread her hands and made me an elaborate bow, while I thanked my particular joss for an empty corridor.
"Lady, take my hat," she entreated. "Efficiency, thy name is——"
"Please keep quiet," I entreated in a low voice as the elevator stopped at our floor.
"As you wish," she said with pretended hauteur, and preserved a lofty air during our descent. As we left the elevator she said with ostentatious dignity:
"Mary, will you please convey the information to your high-born relative that she will receive a telephone call from a worm of the dust as soon as said worm finds out what are the colors of the evening gowns, or has any other information which the aforesaid high-born relative ought to hear?"
She turned abruptly and walked regally to the door without a backward glance. Mary giggled outright, the elevator man choked back a chuckle, and even my exasperation could not keep back a wry smile of my own. A second's reflection banished any possible annoyance, for I knew that when Mary could giggle she could harbor no rancor, and that her resentment against Noel, whatever is the cause, would soon be dissipated.
An Unexpected Message
We went into the dining room, almost deserted at this hour, and spent a quiet quarter of an hour with Mr. Seibel. At the end I stood up with the assurance that every detail of the arrangements for Mary's party with the exception of the decorations would be complete without any further thought on my part.
"I shall be back at 2 o'clock when the decorator and the flowers arrive," I told Mr. Seibel.
"We shall be ready for you," he said with a deferential but confident little bow, and Mary hardly waited until we were out of earshot before exclaiming:
"Honestly, Auntie Madge, I can't tell which knows how to fry the onions best, you or Mr. Seibel. Mrs. Underwood sure had the right dope when she called you——"
"Hush!" I whispered peremptorily as we went through the swinging doors to the lobby, almost running against Purnell.
"Mr. Graham is on the wire in the booth," he explained hurriedly. "I was just coming into the dining room after you."

ROUNDHOUSE FAVORED

ROY RICE TO TACKLE INDUSTRIAL CHAMPS IN SECOND CONTEST

Railroad Hitters Seem Too Much for Kappa Alpha Phi Nine.

BY BOB ELLIOTT

Well most anything can happen in the Roundhouse-Kappa game today and we wouldn't even be a bit surprised. Not after that Lee Street-Calvary battle in the opening clash of the series last Friday. After seeing that game, anything that might happen today would seem a bit common-place, even a Kappa victory, which at this moment seems a rather vague fancy in everybody's mind but the Kappas.

The railroaders' terrific hitting power seems just a little too much for even the star hurlers of the fraternity team to stop but if anybody in the series can stop them it'll be Roy Rice with his change of pace, which the Roundhouse boys will be called upon to face this evening at Lincoln Park in the second battle of the fall classic.

Rice Tough Problem

Rice presents the toughest problem as far as moundsmen go that any of the three other teams will be called upon to do battle with. Rice is a veteran in World Series play, having been in the game ever since recreation ball was started here. Last year he was tossing them over for the Eagles when that team, which was an outstanding favorite for the city title, dropped the deciding game to Epworth No. 1.

This season with the tables reversed and Rice pitching for the underdogs against the favorites the same tale may be re-told and the "Kaps" may win. However if purely baseball ability and past records are taken into consideration the Industrial champions must be given the edge. Playing in a much tougher league, the Roundhouse team dropped three games, one each to Shovel, C., D. & M. and Fairfield. The Kappas won twelve out of fourteen, losing once to the Serv-U-Wels and once to the K. of P. outfit.

Taking the teams man for man there actually seems to be no comparison. Starting with the outfield for no good reason at all we find a combination of Fido Robbins, Glen Price and Wilson against Bill Woods, Johnny Rife, and another person whose identity is as yet unknown. He may be Ernie Arndt. He may be Roscoe Rank or Howard Zuspan, the other members of the Kappa hurling staff. The edge there is so obvious it's useless to say anything further.

The receiving positions finds two brothers pitted against each other with the result about even. A. J. will catch for the Erie and George for the Kappas. Oh, yes, it's the Hinklin family we're talking about. The pitchers give the Kappas a goodly edge with Rice opposing Shoemaker. The latter is without a doubt not much of a pitcher and admits so himself but nevertheless he's pitched some mighty sweet games this year and beaten some mighty tough teams.

Lang on First

First base finds Joe Lang against Pete Haflich with the Kappa manager taking the short end. Lang is a dangerous hitter and a plenty good fielder. Lusch will play Herrod Geissler even at second base while Sammy Sharrock will outplay Gene Geissler at shortstop. However if the Kappa shortfielder has a good night he'll be dangerous at the plate. Hosey Williams and Marion Hinklin might be called even at third base but both are rather erratic ball players and may have an off-night in which anything is likely to happen at the hot corner.

After the first upset a record crowd should travel to Lincoln park for the Roundhouse clash. The first game broke all attendance marks with $89.91 being taken in at the gate. The previous high mark was an even $80.

Pacific Coast Tracksters Expected To Run Away With Closing Day Features

Harlow Rothert Looms as Distinct Threat in Decathlon Event.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
I. N. S. Sports Writer

PITTSBURG, Aug. 25—Having feasted off the porterhouse of the national championships in track and field for two days, the Pacific coast will return to the carcass today to pick its bones and leave them bleaching and stark to the eye. On Friday, the coast nominated the junior team champion in the Olympic Club of San Francisco. On Saturday, it sponsored five record-breakers and a senior championship team from the Los Angeles A. C., not to mention the Olympic Club, which finished second, and the Washington A. C. of Seattle, which finished third. Today, there are seven championships to be decided and the coast will win only four of them, largely, I suspect, because it failed to enter the other three.

Rothert Looked To

For one thing, Harlow Rothert is reckoned to be a push-in for the decathlon or all around championship. He is a Stanford man, competing out of the Olympic Club For another, Herman Brix, is liable to break the world's record for the shot put. He is a Pacific northwesterner, who has gone Hollywood with the Los Angeles A. C. for a third. It is difficult to see how the Los Angeles team of Maxwell, Williams, Alf and Dyer can go wrong in the 440 and 880 yard relays.

Brix's spot on the bill represents an added attraction. He is playing a return engagement in a special shot put series at 8 pounds, 12 pounds and 16 pounds. The latter being the piece de resistance. He hopes to beat the world's record of Hirshfield, the German, which is 52 feet 7¼ inches, and full many there are who believe that he will.

The young man did 52 feet 5¾ inches for an American record in Saturday's dank chill and figures that a milder day ought to be good for a couple of extra inches. Besides, he is said to have beaten Hirshfield's record lots of times in practice; so maybe he can solve the difficulty by either practicing in competition or else competing in practice.

Whatta Man

Rothert is trying the all-around racket for the first time but is said to have something of a flair for the thing. He, of course, ought to be good for a decathlon record in the shot put and discus, after which he will have nothing to do but run, jump and hurdle through eight other events A fairly fast man, he ought to do well enough in the runs. Namely, the 100-metre, 400-metre and 1,500-metre events, and they say he can go as high as 11 feet in the pole vault. As for the high jump, he is said to have specialized in this event in high school while his fair turn of speed should get him somewhere in the broad jump.

In other words, if the man can do all of the things they are so willing to concede him this morning, Ken Doherty's American record of 7784.68 is in definite danger.

CHICAGO OUTFIELDER PULLS TY COBB TO GIVE TEAM VICTORY

Danny Taylor Pilfers Home in Last of Ninth with Score Tied.

By International News Service

NEW YORK, Aug. 25—Everybody was talking about Danny Taylor, that Chicago Cub outfielder, today. And on Sunday everybody was looking at Danny Taylor off third base—that is everybody except Joe Heving, Giant pitcher, who was very busy probably wondering how he would spend his world's series money divvy.

Anyway, it was the ninth inning; score 2 to 2; two men out and three Cubs crowding the sacks with Taylor dancing around third. Taylor was that well-known cynosure of 46,999 pairs of eyes. They saw Taylor dash for home; they saw that slow, deliberate windup of Heving, as unconscious as though he had been drinking novocaine cocktails. They saw Taylor cross the plate just before the ball floated over and Cubs won 3 to 2. It was a thrilling climax to one of the most important weeks of the season—a week that marked the challenge and failure of the Giants, the fearful and perhaps final collapse of the Robins as contenders and the placing of the Bruins five full games in front in the national circuit.

Those St. Louis Cardinals, moved closer on the third place Dodgers as they took a double-header from the Phillies, 9-4 and 6-4, Lindsey winning the opener and Burleigh Grimes getting credit for the vesper victory.

West's Triple Wins

A triple by Sammy West with two on triumphed 7 to 3 for the Senators over the Athletics, cutting the A's lead to seven and one half games.

Fifty thousand turned out to watch the Yankees and Indians divide a double header and Babe Ruth didn't even get a hit. Dusty Miller's eleventh-inning homer won for the Yanks in the first game, 5 to 3, while Wesley Ferrell pitched himself his twenty-second victory in the tea-tilt as the Indians snatched it, 4 to 2.

Kremer hurled the Pirates to a 9 to 6 win over the Reds, who came back with Ray Kolp in the sun-down entertainment to get the nod, 2 to 0.

Gaston limited the White Sox to three singles and elevated Boston, 2 to 0, Chicago taking the nightcap in 11 innings with Caraway on the mound, 5 to 4.

The Brownies bunched their hits, drove Earl Whitehill to the Porcelains, breaking his long winning streak, and lowered away Detroit, 7 to 5.

BETTY NUTHALL NEW RULER OF WOMEN'S TENNIS IN AMERICA

Defeats Mrs. Anna Harper in Straight Sets To Win Coveted Title.

By The Associated Press

FOREST HILLS, N. Y.—Betty Nuthall, 20-year-old British girl with a smile famous on two continents and a blistering forehand drive, is the new tennis champion of the United States.

She wasn't considered good enough to have a place this year on the British Wightman Cup team and she was a disappointment at Wimbledon, but before an American gallery that has made her its darling, she scored a double triumph in the finals of the national women's championships on the rain-drenched courts of the west side tennis club.

Succeeding to the title forfeited by Helen Wills Moody just before the tournament started, Miss Nuthall captured the singles championship by defeating Mrs. Anna Virginia McCune Harper, San Francisco left-hander and fifth ranking American 6-1, 6-4.

Returning to the courts after a heavy downpour and playing on slippery turf through intermitten showers, Miss Nuthall teaamed with a 17-year-old American girl, Sarah Palfrey of Boston, to win the doubles honors. They came from behind to defeat Mrs. Harper and Edith Cross, also of San Francisco, 3-6, 6-3, 7-5.

For the first time in 43 years, the American woman's singles championship goes abroad in Miss Nuthall's possession, but few victories by homebred stars have been received with any more applause than was Betty's triumph.

The Kappas won twelve out of fourteen, losing once to the Serv-U-Wels and once to the K of P. outfit.

Taking the teams man for man there actually seems to be no comparison. Starting with the outfield for no good reason at all we find a combination of Fido Robbins, Glen Price and Wilson against Bill Woods, Johnny Rife, and another person whose identity is as yet unknown. He may be Ernie Arndt. He may be Roscoe Rank or Howard Zuspan, the other members of the Kappa hurling staff. The edge there is so obvious it's useless to say anything further.

The receiving positions finds two brothers pitted against each other with the result about even. A. J. will catch for the Erie and George for the Kappas. Oh, yes, it's the Hinklin family we're talking about. The pitchers give the Kappas a goodly edge with Rice opposing Shoemaker. The latter is without a doubt not much of a pitcher and admits so himself but nevertheless he's pitched some mighty sweet games this year and beaten some mighty tough teams.

Lang on First

First base finds Joe Lang against Pete Haflich with the Kappa manager taking the short end. Lang is a dangerous hitter and a plenty good fielder. Lusch will play Herrod Geissler even at second base while Sammy Sharrock will outplay Gene Geissler at shortstop. However if the Kappa shortfielder has a good night he'll be dangerous at the plate. Hosey Williams and Marion Hinklin might be called even at third base but both are rather erratic ball players and may have an off-night in which anything is likely to happen at the hot corner.

After the first upset a record crowd should travel to Lincoln park for the Roundhouse clash. The first game broke all attendance marks with $89.91 being taken in at the gate. The previous high mark was an even $80.

Pacific Coast Tracksters Expected To Run Away With Closing Day Features

Harlow Rothert Looms as Distinct Threat in Decathlon Event.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
I. N. S. Sports Writer

PITTSBURG, Aug. 25—Having feasted off the porterhouse of the national championships in track and field for two days, the Pacific coast will return to the carcass today to pick its bones and leave them bleaching and stark to the eye. On Friday, the coast nominated the junior team champion in the Olympic Club of San Francisco. On Saturday, it sponsored five record-breakers and a senior championship team from the Los Angeles A. C., not to mention the Olympic Club, which finished second, and the Washington A. C. of Seattle, which finished third. Today, there are seven championships to be decided and the coast will win only four of them, largely, I suspect, because it failed to enter the other three.

Rothert Looked To

For one thing, Harlow Rothert is reckoned to be a push-in for the decathlon or all around championship. He is a Stanford man, competing out of the Olympic Club. For another, Herman Brix, is liable to break the world's record for the shot put. He is a Pacific northwesterner, who has gone Hollywood with the Los Angeles A. C. for a third. It is difficult to see how the Los Angeles team of Maxwell, Williams, Alf and Dyer can go wrong in the 440 and 880 yard relays.

Brix's spot on the bill represents an added attraction. He is playing a return engagement in a special shot put series at 8 pounds, 12 pounds and 16 pounds. The latter being the piece de resistance. He hopes to beat the world's record of Hirshfield, the German, which is 52 feet 7¼ inches, and full many there are who believe that he will.

The young man did 52 feet 5¾ inches for an American record in Saturday's dank chill and figures that a milder day ought to be good for a couple of extra inches. Besides, he is said to have beaten Hirshfield's record lots of times in practice; so maybe he can solve the difficulty by either practicing in competition or else competing in practice.

Whatta Man

Rothert is trying the all-around racket for the first time but is said to have something of a flair for the thing. He, of course, ought to be good for a decathlon record in the shot put and discus, after which he will have nothing to do but run, jump and hurdle through eight other events. A fairly fast man, he ought to do well enough in the runs. Namely, the 100-metre, 400-metre and 1,500-metre events, and they say he can go as high as 11 feet in the pole vault. As for the high jump, he is said to have specialized in this event in high school while his fair turn of speed should get him somewhere in the broad jump.

In other words, if the man can do all of the things they are so willing to concede him this morning, Ken Doherty's American record of 7784.68 is in definite danger.

CHICAGO OUTFIELDER PULLS TY COBB TO GIVE TEAM VICTORY

Danny Taylor Pilfers Home in Last of Ninth with Score Tied.

By International News Service

NEW YORK, Aug. 25—Everybody was talking about Danny Taylor, that Chicago Cub outfielder, today. And on Sunday everybody was looking at Danny Taylor off third base—that is everybody except Joe Heving, Giant pitcher, who was very busy probably wondering how he would spend his world's series money divvy.

Anyway, it was the ninth inning; score 2 to 2; two men out and three Cubs crowding the sacks with Taylor dancing around third. Taylor was that well-known cynosure of 46,999 pairs of eyes. They saw Taylor dash for home; they saw that slow, deliberate windup of Heving, as unconscious as though he had been drinking novocaine cocktails. They saw Taylor cross the plate just before the ball floated over and Cubs won 3 to 2. It was a thrilling climax to one of the most important weeks of the season—a week that marked the challenge and failure of the Giants, the fearful and perhaps final collapse of the Robins as contenders and the placing of the Bruins five full games in front in the national circuit.

Those St. Louis Cardinals, moved closer on the third place Dodgers as they took a double-header from the Phillies, 9-4 and 6-4, Lindsey winning the opener and Burleigh Grimes getting credit for the vesper victory.

West's Triple Wins

A triple by Sammy West with two on triumphed 7 to 3 for the Senators over the Athletics, cutting the A's lead to seven and one half games.

Fifty thousand turned out to watch the Yankees and Indians divide a double header and Babe Ruth didn't even get a hit. Dusty Miller's eleventh-inning homer won for the Yanks in the first game, 5 to 3, while Wesley Ferrell pitched himself his twenty-second victory in the tea-tilt as the Indians snatched it, 4 to 2.

Kremer hurled the Pirates to a 9 to 6 win over the Reds, who came back with Ray Kolp in the sun-down entertainment to get the nod, 2 to 0.

Gaston limited the White Sox to three singles and elevated Boston, 2 to 0, Chicago taking the night-cap in 11 innings with Caraway on the mound, 5 to 4.

The Brownies bunched their hits, drove Earl Whitehill to the Porcelains, breaking his long winning streak, and lowered away Detroit, 7 to 5.

BETTY NUTHALL NEW RULER OF WOMEN'S TENNIS IN AMERICA

Defeats Mrs. Anna Harper in Straight Sets To Win Coveted Title.

By The Associated Press

FOREST HILLS, N. Y.—Betty Nuthall, 20-year-old British girl with a smile famous on two continents and a blistering forehand drive, is the new tennis champion of the United States.

She wasn't considered good enough to have a place this year on the British Wightman Cup team and she was a disappointment at Wimbledon, but before an American gallery that has made her its darling, she scored a double triumph in the finals of the national women's championships on the rain-drenched courts of the west side tennis club.

Succeeding to the title forfeited by Helen Wills Moody just before the tournament started, Miss Nuthall captured the singles championship by defeating Mrs. Anna Virginia McCune Harper, San Francisco left-hander and fifth ranking American 6-1, 6-4.

Returning to the courts after a heavy downpour and playing on slippery turf through intermitten showers, Miss Nuthall teaamed with a 17-year-old American girl, Sarah Palfrey of Boston, to win the doubles honors. They came from behind to defeat Mrs. Harper and Edith Cross, also of San Francisco, 3-6, 6-3, 7-5.

For the first time in 43 years, the American woman's singles championship goes abroad in Miss Nuthall's possession, but few victories by homebred stars have been received with any more applause than was Betty's triumph.

EDDIE HAPPY WITH RECORD

Schneider Sets New Junior Round Trip Coast-To-Coast Flight Mark.

By International News Service

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Aug. 25—"Hello, Pop, I made it"

That was the greeting to his father by happy Eddie Schneider, who today holds the coast-to-coast round trip junior flight record, as he ended the final leg of his trip.

The 18-year-old pilot landed here shortly after 4 p. m., as a crowd of 2,000 cheersd. He completed the flight from Los Angeles in 27 hours, 19 minutes and made a round trip record of 57 hours, having flown from east in 29 hours and 41 minutes.

His record broke by one hour and 36 minutes the round-trip time of Frank Goldborough, the boy flyer who was killed when his plane crashed in Vermont.

Bucking strong winds, Schneider flew from Columbus to New York in a single day. He was not tired, he said, but hungry, having gone without food on the entire last leg of his trip.

He plans to fly today to Chicago, where he will compete in the national air races.

Young Schneider said he was impressed with the vast wastes in the west where he flew for more than 100 miles without sighting signs of habitation. He also was surprised, he said, at the large number of air hitch-hikers. He refused rides to scores.

The young pilot brought with him a letter from the mayor of Los Angeles to Mayor Walked of New York and one to Mayor Hague of Jersey City, Schneider's home town.

IRA R. JOHNSON, 54, DIES AT HOME HERE

Former Express Clerk Claimed After Illness of Two Years.

Ira Robert Johnson, 54, at one time an express clerk and employe of the Power Manufacturing Co, died today at 8:25 a. m. at his home at 560 North Prospect street. A two years' illness of complications and paralysis caused his death.

Mr. Johnson was born Jan. 28, 1876, in Robinson, Ill., to William H. and Elizabeth Ann Wilson-Johnson. They preceded him in death. His wife, Bernice Boyers-Johnson, to whom he was married June 14, 1908 in Robinson, Ill., is living. Their four children, Ruth, Esther, Virgil and Patricia, are all at home. Two children are dead.

Walter Johnson, Charles Johnson and Ray Johnson, his brothers, are all living in Robinson, Ill. One sister is dead.

Mr. Johnson was a member of the Central Christian church here and of the I. O. O. F. lodge in Robinson.

Private funeral services will be held Wednesday at 3:30 p. m. at the W. C. Boyd funeral home on South Main street, with Rev. M. L. Buckley, former pastor of Central Christian church, in charge. Interment will be in Marion cemetery.

INCOME TAXES SHOW INCREASE FOR 1930

Total Boosted Despite One Per Cent Decrease in Rate, Report Shows.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25—Income taxes and other internal revenue receipts showed a substantial increase for the fiscal year just ended, despite the one per cent income tax reduction in effect the last six months.

A preliminary statement by the bureau of internal revenue set the total collections for the 12 months ending June 30 at $3,040,145,733, an increase of $101,091,357 over the preceding year's receipts. Of the total $2,410,259,230 was in income taxes, accounting for almost $79,000,000 of the increase.

STOCK MARKET AT NEW LEVEL

All Except Oils Firm at Start of New Week; Dull in Second Hour.

By International News Service

NEW YORK, Aug. 25—With the exception of the oils, which wobbled on the prospect of a further addition to the burdensome supplies of crude oil, the stock market was firm at the beginning of the week, with most of the railroad industrial and utility favorites at higher price levels. Business and industrial news was unchanged over the week-end but Wall Street was cheerful in anticipation of an upturn in important lines after Labor Day.

The market was dull and inactive in the second hour, with speculative trading held back by the coming triple holiday. The airplane stocks, under the lead of United Aircraft pushed ahead to slightly higher price levels. Unitec Aircraft sold around 64, up 2 points to the best level in two months. Loews and Radio Keith sold commanded higher, in the lead of the amusement stocks, which as a group commanded higher prices. New York Central, up 2½ points, led the way for the rails.

Standard Oil of New Jersey was under pressure and sold down 2 points at 68½. Atlantic Refining, Sinclair, Mid-Continent and other well-known oils fell off a point on the average, National Power and Light and United Corporation received the most attention in the low-priced utilities and reached sightly higher prices.

Call money renewed at 2 per cent, with funds offered "outside" at 1½ per cent. Cotton advanced a few points in the early trading.

TWO FACE CHARGES IN CHICKEN THEFT

Harold and Carl Crissinger in City Prison Awaiting Arraignment.

Harold and Carl Crissinger of 783 York street today were in the city prison on charges of chicken stealing following their arrest yesterday.

They are accused of having stolen six chickens from the farm of John Irey on the Mt. Olive-Agosta road Saturday.

Herman V. Irey, contractor, saw the youths leaving the farm as he was working on the road nearby. He ordered them to stop. He is said to have found the chickens in a bag which they carried. Irey followed them into the city and reported them to police, who arrested them on a charge of suspicion. The charge of chicken stealing was placed against them yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Fred Williams following an investigation of the case.

Harold Crissinger will be given a hearing in municipal court Thursday at 9 a. m. while Carl, a minor, will be given a hearing late today in juvenile court. The former has served a sentence in the Mansfield reformatory while Carl has been an inmate of the Boys' School at Lancaster.

Liverpool Quotations Fall To Respond to American Advances.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 25—With Liverpool wheat quotations failing to respond well to advances on this side of the Atlantic, wheat and corn here both averaged lower in price early today. An increase of four per cent in 1930 wheat production by 22 countries was announced, as compared with 1929. Opening unchanged to ⅜c off, Chicago wheat future deliveries rallied somewhat, and then underwent a material setback all around. Corn started at ⅜c declining to ⅛c advance, hardened a little, and subsequently underwent a general drop.

SEEKING FAMOUS FAMILY MANTLE

The first of the new generation of Barrymores to make her entrance upon the American stage, Ethel Barrymore Colt, 18, receives special instructions in the great Barrymore tradition from her illustrious mother, Ethel Barrymore (right). Miss Colt will make her debut August 29 in Cleveland when she appears behind the footlights with her mother in the latter's new play, "Scarlet Sister Mary."

Divorce Claims One in Six Marriages, Is Claim

BOSTON—The divorce question in this country is a serious one.

Such is the opinion of Dr. David D. Vaughan, professor of social ethics in Boston University's school of theology, in expressing his views on marriage, the home and divorce.

"In 1887 the ratio was only one divorce in 17 possibilities," declared the Boston University sociologist. "Today the average is one in six; and it is going to get worse because of individualism and moral anarchism. People cannot live together until they learn how to do so.

Oppose Uniform Divorce Law

"The women's clubs of this country are advocating a uniform divorce law. I do not believe in it, because we do not know what we want. Let all of the states experiment first, and then draw up a uniform law. What is put through by the state must be decided by sufficient experiment.

"Marriage is the only contract in this country that cannot be broken by mutual consent," continued the professor. "This is not so in the Scandinavian countries where husband and wife without children live apart for a year if they mutually wish divorce, in order to make sure it was not a temporary flight. If at the end of that time they still wish to separate, a divorce is granted with no trouble."

"Love and Sex Fleeting Things"

Discussing marriage, the educator declared that "love and sex are fleeting things. It requires more than that to make a happy marriage. The ego in man makes him want children. The idea of oblivion is repugnant to him, for he does not want to die when he is laid in the grave, but wants to live in his children and children's children for generations and centuries to come.

"Men and women should marry while young," Dr. Vaughan continued. "If a man waits until he has finished college and started in the medical profession, for example, he will be around 30 before he can marry. At 30 or 35 a man is generally disillusioned, and often postpones marriage for economic reasons."

BRITISH GOVERNMENT ACCUSED BY LEAGUE

Claim Bloody Palestine Disorders Could Have Been Averted.

By The Associated Press

GENEVA, Aug. 25—A sharp clash of opinion on responsibility for the bloody Palestine disorders of last August was disclosed officially today when the league of nations published its mandate commission report on an examination of the situation, with the British government's comments on the report which will be placed before the league council next month.

The mandate commission, composed of the strongest powers of the league, accused the British government of having failed in its administration of the Palestine mandate specifically in failing to satisfy the political aspirations of the Arabs, in failing to produce security for persons and property, for establishment of the Jewish home and for being taken by surprise by the outbreak of last August.

Secretary Henderson, replying tersely for his government, declared the commission itself did not foresee the August trouble and that the commission in many instances had rejected the findings of the Shaw commission and cepted the declarations presen by Jewish agencies upon which t government had no chance to c ment. Mr. Henderson pointed the difficulty of satisfying political ambitions of the Ar and at the same time advanc the cause of a Jewish natio home, while carrying out orde of the league of nations to ma tain the rights of all inhabita of Palestine regardless of race a religion.

The Big Basso Is Too, He Mannish for Bori

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 25—Virgilio Lazzari, the basso, was a bit rough again Saturday and Lucrezia Bori missed her first curtain call of her five summer season at Ravinia.

Mme. Bori, New York's Metropolitan prima donna, was singing Flora in the "Love of Three Kings." Lazzari was Flora's father. In the final scene, the father, before singing his exit, picks up his dead daughter, throws her over shoulder and then lays her down on a beach. But Lazzari was too rough.

Mme. Bori fainted. Those in the wings noticed it but not Lazzari. He finished the aria, picked up Flora's body and strode off stage. There, he learned what had happened.

The curtain parted for Bori's call—but she had not yet been revived.

Last January, in the civic opera, Mary Garden in the role of Flora was painfully hurt when the basso threw her over his shoulder in the same manner.
